

THE DEATH OF GENERAL GRANT.

The life which has been hanging on such a slender thread for so many months, has passed away. The twilight of eternity which cast its pale reflection on the Grant cottage on Mount McGregor forty-eight hours ago, soon brought the shadow of death, and at four minutes past eight o'clock this morning, General Grant breathed his last. The picture of the silent cottage on the Mount where that life went out forever, will stir with deep emotion the heart of the nation.

The name of Grant is one of the imperishable names in American history. Like those of Washington and Lincoln, it will live whenever and wherever the splendid story of the American people shall be read. The story of his remarkable life reads like a romance created by the widest stretch of the imagination of a genius. Twenty-five years ago he was one of the least known of all the men living in obscurity. In less than seven years from that time he had commanded the greatest and the grandest army of any country or of any time, crushed the most powerful rebellion of which history gives any account, and had been elected to the highest political position that human ambition can crave. From the dazzling height of the presidency of the United States, he went quietly and unostentatiously to private life. The governments of the civilized world honored him as they never before honored a man; but when he returned to his native land to be received with the wildest and most imposing demonstrations ever given in honor of a human being, he was the same plain American citizen, and never once, not in the days of his supreme power and highest achievements, was he anything but a modest, quiet, manly man. The story of his life for four years immediately following 1861, is more marvelous than the story of Cromwell, and it approaches in interest the never-ending story of the matchless struggle, and the sad life of the immortal Lincoln.

He was reckoned by the highest military authorities of Europe to be the greatest soldier of modern time. He fought more battles and won more victories than any other general the world has produced. Some have attributed much of his success to luck. But Divinity has never decreed that any man shall win brilliant victories and go on conquering and to conquer, simply through chance or luck. General Grant had the ability to marshal armies, organize campaigns and defeat the enemy more brilliantly than Napoleon, and his military genius, his commanding courage, his cool judgment and his unerring decision, crushed the most gigantic rebellion the world has ever seen.

The nation will mourn the death of General Grant. His name belongs to all the people. No party that loves country and liberty will be easily touched by his death. He is the nation's hero, and the nation, north and south, east and west, will join in paying the deepest respect to his memory.

Milwaukee has a population of 158,365, a gain of 42,787 since 1880. Of the present total census, 1,208 are old soldiers. Milwaukee should heartily rejoice over this splendid increase, and the state should feel proud of its metropolis.

The Mormons in Utah seem to be elated with the appointment of Mr. Hays, of this state, as justice of the supreme court of that territory. Judge Morgan seems to have been removed because he did not give satisfaction to the Mormons.

Of the 397,821 immigrants who arrived in this country during the fiscal year ending June 30, 1885, 45,178 came from England and Wales, 51,067 from Ireland, 9,194 from Scotland, 128,293 from Germany, 11,164 from Austria, 35,000 from Canada, 21,994 from Sweden, 12,181 from Norway, and 13,587 from Italy. The arrivals for last year were only about one-half as many as in 1882, and there has been a decided decrease every year during the past four years.

A commission has decided that John McCullough is a lunatic, and therefore a person has been appointed to take charge of his estate. The schedule of his estate places the value of the real estate at only $200 and of the personal property at $4,304. John McCullough has made over half a million during the past dozen years, but he could never keep the money which so easily flowed into his pockets. His generosity in the way of best living took nearly every cent he made, and this remnant of a fortune was saved by his wife who took no part in his extravagances.

The Postal Guide reports that up to the last of July there were 51,255 post-offices in the United States, and the number is steadily increasing at about the rate of fifty per month. The new offices, of course, are mainly in the west and south. From December 1 to the close of June but 27 new offices were established in the New England states, and the number in New York increased by but 15, while the southern states have

THE HERO DEAD.

General Grant Passed Away at 8-04 'clock this Morning.

He Met Death Heroically, and was Painless in Dying.

Particulars of His Last Moments.

President Cleveland Sends a Long Message of Condolence.

Mr. McGowan, N. Y., July 23.—General Grant died peacefully at 8:04 o'clock this morning. All the members of the Grant family were at the bedside of the dying hero.

At two o'clock this morning the general's throat began to clog with mucus, and he was too weak to expectorate, and the death rattle commenced, lasting three hours. At the last moment he seemed conscious and recognized his friends by opening his eyes. Death was made painless by hypodermic injections of brandy.

Dr. Newman says he passed away like a child—a choking in the throat, a slight grasp of the muscles, the face relaxed and the great warrior was gone. He made an heroic but vain attempt to clear his throat, thus realizing that his last hours had come. His last words were at three o'clock when he asked for water.

President Cleveland sent a long message of condolence to the afflicted family, who are prostrated.

THEY ARE PASSING AWAY.

Suggestive Figures of the Indian Census.—Big Swallow to Beef.

PORT HAVEN, I. T., July 23.—The enrollment of the Chiricahua and Arapahoe Indians was completed Wednesday morning. There are 2,169 Chiricahua and 1,900 Arapahoe. No census has been taken of these Indians since 1874, when the Chiricahua numbered 3,002 and the Arapahoe 2,900. Upon this basis the present count shows that for several years the government has been defrauded out of the difference. The amount saved by the new census will be $2,000 pounds of beef weekly of the value of $1,992. This result shows how strong the influence is likely to be to prevent a count, not only from the Indians themselves, but the contractors as well. The Indians are now perfectly satisfied and the trouble is all over.

On the Race Track.—New York, July 23.—The racing at Brighton Beach Wednesday was good. First race, 1 1/2 miles; time, 1:57. Second race, 1 mile; time, 1:57. Third race, 1 mile; time, 1:57. Fourth race, 1 mile; time, 1:57. Fifth race, 1 mile; time, 1:57. Sixth race, 1 mile; time, 1:57.

Death of Judge Dickie, of Illinois.—ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 23.—Judge Dickie, of the Illinois supreme court, died at his cottage in this city, at 11:30 o'clock Wednesday night, after an illness of several months. Judge Dickie was born in Bourbon county, Kentucky, Oct. 2, 1811. In the fall of 1839 he entered the Ohio university. The next year he was admitted to the bar. He became a member of the bar in 1840. He was elected to the supreme court in 1854. He served with distinction in the Mexican war, and was of the rebellion, being with Grant at Vicksburg. He was elected to the Illinois supreme court in 1870, and served until 1878.

John Roach's Debt.—PHILADELPHIA, July 23.—James Swanwick, the secretary of the American Steel Association, said Wednesday that he had taken the trouble to make inquiry of all the iron and steel firms with which John Roach had any dealings, and had elicited the information that his indebtedness to them is not worthy of mention as he owed them practically nothing. The three largest firms assured him that Mr. Roach was not in their debt a single dollar, having paid them every claim some time ago. It is generally believed that his chief indebtedness is to New York banks for accommodation in the way of loans, and that he has paid for nearly, if not quite, all the material purchased with the advances that he received on his government contracts.

Squelched a Socialist Demonstration.—FRANKFURT, July 23.—Quite an alarm was caused Wednesday owing to fears of a social outbreak. The Socialist Democrats made the funeral of their fellow, Hiller, the occasion of a demonstration. Most inflammatory speeches were prepared denouncing God, Kaiser and government.

The troops of the garrison were held in readiness for the night. At a moment's notice, they were prepared to charge through the streets leading to the cemetery. The police forbade speeches, and the Socialist Democrats refused to obey. A riotous and disorderly crowd gathered, and a fight broke out. Several persons were wounded in the affray.

The Dolphin Case.—New York, July 23.—W. E. Wood and G. W. Quintard, John Roach's attorneys, with Lawyers Vanderpool and Bookert, saw Secretary Whitney at his home in New York city Wednesday. Roach's questioner cared to say what happened at the interview. It is understood, however, that an effort was made to induce Mr. Whitney to reconsider the rejection of the Dolphin. "I cannot say a word about the matter yet," said Mr. Whitney, "but when I get back to Washington I will write out my opinion and give it to the public through the newspapers." There is a story that the Dolphin will be accepted by the government.

CHINESE COOKING.

CUISINE OF THE MONGOLIAN RESTAURANTS OF NEW YORK CITY.

Dining in Genuine Oriental Style—The Various Courses—Cost of a Good Dinner—The Element of Surprise—Staplicity.

[Wong Chin Foo in Chicago News.]

In the last two years New York fashion-able society has cultivated a new craze—oriental eating and drinking. John Chinaman. Every church patronized by the Chinese in a Chinese hall, its Chinese menu, its Chinese teachers, its Chinese night-school. Like most of the new fashions, this one has been brought to us from the East. It has been introduced, however, in turning attention to Chinatown and in making known many things that heretofore were unknown to Americans. Among these things is the fact that a hundred New Yorkers have been dining in oriental style. In 1893 the number is far up among the thousands.

The average American, who is first attracted to the Chinese restaurant, does so in fear and trembling. Vague prepossessions of grotesque rats, managons of mice, and similar luxuries float through his mind. Nine times out of ten he leaves the table without having eaten a morsel. He has learned something, and that the almond-eyed sons of the sun are the best cooks in the world. So he goes again, and with him brings two or three impulsive or adventurous friends.

They dine in the Chinese restaurant proper in the Mongolian settlement. Each is famous for some dish or style of cooking. The Mongolian of the number is Yu Yang, Pang-Lau, at 14 West street. Here regular Chinese importers and Hong Kong merchants from Frisco, Bush and gamblers and wealthy laundries. All of the restaurants are run on the same plan. A plain white table, simple pine or walnut chairs, small stools, crimson banners and notices on the walls, and a lavish display of curious porcelain vessels in racks and stands characterize the place.

You have never heard, reader, under any name, of a place where you can eat a large square table. The most recent new craze, however, is the front of you in a teapop filled with fresh, boiling tea, a teapop one-third the size of those used by Americans, two empty chopsticks, a porcelain spoon, a small glass, a small bowl, a small dish, with a complete table called "seya." This is a hybrid between salt and dilute Worcester sauce. From its name comes the familiar British term "seya." The first course is a dish of roast chicken, served with pickled perfume shrimp.
